

Animals in the War

After reading, 'Flo of the Somme', about a dog who helped the soldiers in The Great War, we were interested in finding out about the roles animals have played in war. In our English lessons we wrote non chronological reports about the different ways that dogs, pigeons, horses and even elephants have helped in combat. We learned the purple poppy remembers animals that died in the war. We used capital letters, finger spaces and full stops in our sentences. Our parents enjoyed listening to all the things we had found out during our Year 1 class assembly.
