

Playdough Printing

In art, Year 4 have given playdough printing a try. It wasn't an easy job as they had to make their own printing tile and use abstract patterns, textures and marks to design it!

After, the children used printing ink and rollers to create a print in their sketch books. They soon found out what worked really well and areas they needed to improve on. They have considered depth, pattern and pressure when printing and have learned they need to perfect balance of all three!

Year 4 showed great determination and went through a process of trial and improvement to get their prints working.
